$2.5M for Sniper Victim Families

WASHINGTON | Relatives of eight people shot in the 2002 sniper shootings said Thursday they hope their $2.5 million settlement will force gun manufacturers and dealers to keep closer track of the weapons they make and sell.

Eight families settled Wednesday with Bushmaster Firearms, which made the rifle used in the shootings, and Bull's Eye Shooter Supply of Tacoma, Wash., the gun shop where the rifle was stolen.

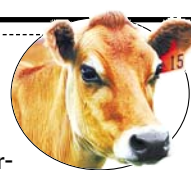

The settlement marks the first time a gun manufacturer has agreed to pay damages for negligence leading to a crime, according to the Brady Center to Prevent Gun Violence, which helped the families file the suit.

The lawsuit claimed Bull's Eye was negligent for allowing the gun to disappear from its shop. The suit also faulted Bushmaster for selling the weapon to a dealer that the families claimed was irresponsible. Authorities believe convicted snipers Lee Boyd Malvo and John Allen Muhammad stole the gun from Bull's Eye and later used it during their spree.

Bull's Eye has agreed to pay $2 million and Bushmaster will pay $500,000 under the settlement. Bushmaster did not admit fault and said it settled because of escalating legal fees. STEVEN MANNING (AP)

Bush's Service in Question

Guard duty back in spotlight amid release of new memos

WASHINGTON | New documents unearthed in the midst of the presidential campaign fill in some blanks but raise other questions about the sometimes mysterious story of President Bush's military service during Vietnam, when he won a coveted spot in the Texas Air National Guard and avoided the war.

Reviving issues that have shadowed his political career, the documents show Bush ignored a direct order from a superior officer and lost his status as a Texas Air National Guard pilot because he failed to meet military performance standards and undergo a required physical.

The disclosures marked the second time in days the White House had to backtrack from assertions that all of Bush's records had been released. It also raised the specter that Bush sought favors from higher-ups and that the commander of the Texas Air National Guard wanted to "sugar coat" Bush's record after he was suspended from flying.

The documents turned the spotlight on Bush after weeks of damaging political attacks questioning John Kerry's military service in Vietnam.

Yet, it was the White House itself that distributed four memos from 1972 and 1973 from Lt. Col. Jerry Killian, now deceased, who was the commander of the 111th Fighter Interceptor Squadron in Houston where Bush served. The White House obtained the memos from CBS News, which said it was convinced of their authenticity, and the White House did not question their accuracy. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

Walla Walla Wallaby

A family moving into a home in Key Center, Wash., was greeted by a young male wallaby, a marsupial native to Australia. "It was just tapping on the back door," said Sgt. Ted Jackson of the Washington state Department of Fish and Wildlife on Wednesday. "We're real curious where it came from." The wallaby was taken to the local Humane Society, and appears to be comfortable around humans. "He just cuddles right up to you," said a Humane Society spokeswoman. (AP)

WASHINGTON House Votes to Block Changes to Overtime Pay

In a sharp rebuke of a new administration policy, the House moved Thursday to block the Labor Department from carrying out overtime rules that critics argued could deprive millions of workers of their overtime pay. The 223-193 vote in favor of blocking the rules defied the White House. A threatened veto applied to a spending bill now on the House floor if it contains language tampering with the rules. (AP)

CIA Faulted on Iraq Abuse

Army generals point to agency for failure to track 'ghost detainees'

WASHINGTON | Army generals said Thursday at least two dozen unregistered "ghost detainees" may have been held at the Abu Ghraib prison in Iraq, but they don't know the number for certain because the CIA did not cooperate with their investigation into abuses.

Senators said the CIA's lack of cooperation was unacceptable and that they would press the agency to provide the Army with the documents it needs.

CIA spokesman Mark Mansfield declined to comment on the number of cases. He noted the agency's inspector general is reviewing the CIA's involvement in detention and interrogations in Iraq. The presence of "ghost detainees" — prisoners held by the CIA outside of the military's usual system of registration and care — was a key finding of the Army generals' investigation, completed last month.

The generals and the authors of another report on prison abuses discussed their investigations in a series of hearings Thursday by the Senate and House armed services panels.

Army investigators had previously said they had information on eight "ghost detainees" at Abu Ghraib, but that there may have been more.

Gen. Paul Kern, who oversaw the Army investigation of the 205th Military Intelligence Brigade, told the Senate panel that the number of ghost detainees was "in the dozens, perhaps up to 100."

Maj. Gen. George Fay, who investigated military intelligence officers at the prison, said he doubts the figure is as high as 100, "but I think it's somewhere in the area of maybe two dozen or so — maybe more." KEN GUGGENHEIM (AP)

Memos on Guard Duty Questioned

Author's son doubts legitimacy of record on Bush's service

DALLAS | The authenticity of newly unearthed memos stating that George W. Bush failed to meet standards of the Texas Air National Guard during the Vietnam War was questioned Thursday by the son of the late officer who reportedly wrote the memos.

Gary Killian, son of Lt. Col. Jerry Killian, who died in 1984, said one of the memos, signed by his father, appeared legitimate. But he doubted his father would have written another, unsigned memo which said there was pressure to "sugar coat" Bush's performance review.

News reports have said the memos, first obtained by CBS's "60 Minutes II," were found in Jerry Killian's personal records.

CBS stood by its reporting. "As is standard practice at CBS News, the documents in the 60 Minutes report were thoroughly examined and their authenticity vouched for by independent experts," CBS News said in a statement.

Helping 9/11 Families Heal

As attacks reach third anniversary, survivors still coping with grief

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y. | Margie Miller knew the look.

A few weeks ago, nearly three years after terrorists slammed hijacked jets into the World Trade Center, a woman walked into the WTC Family Center on Long Island. She had just been told that her husband's remains had finally been identified, and she needed to speak with a grief counselor.

For Miller, it was a sadly familiar scenario. Her own husband died at Marsh & McLennan, an insurance brokerage firm, on the 97th floor of Tower 1 on Sept. 11, 2001.

"No matter when they show up here, they don't have to retell the story. We know how they died," said Miller, the center's family liaison. "We're still doing funerals."

In the days and weeks after Sept. 11, relatives swarmed the WTC Family Center. Many found it a refuge from their homes, where they were surrounded by reminders of their loved ones.

They're still coming.

This year the center, which offers its services to victims' families for free, has seen 200 newcomers. Some came after being told that a fragment of their loved one's body had been identified. Others had thought they could handle the emotional stress on their own.

Thelma Stuart said she initially joined a support group for the families of the 37 Port Authority of New York and New Jersey police officers who died on Sept. 11; her husband, Walwyn, was assigned to the WTC's underground PATH Station.

"That really wasn't going anywhere for me," she said. "I realized even though there were 37 families, we were all at different places in our grieving process. I decided to take a chance on this ... and I really loved it." FRANK ELTMAN (AP)

Ivan Prompts Fla. Keys Evacuation

Island residents urged to flee as state faces a third hurricane strike

KEY LARGO, FLA. | Tourists and residents throughout the Florida Keys were sent packing Thursday to avoid the wrath of Hurricane Ivan, which killed at least 20 people as it tore through the Caribbean on its steady march toward the Florida coast.

Forecasters said Ivan could reach the island chain as early as Sunday, making it the third hurricane to strike Florida in a month. The last time three hurricanes hit Florida in a single season was 1964.

The storm's advance and the evacuation orders signaled the frightening reality that Florida faces as it deals with the prospect of yet another hurricane strike.

While forecasters view the Keys as Ivan's prime target, the storm could shift to anywhere in Florida and possibly all the way up to South Carolina. Gov. Jeb Bush said he was not working with a "doomsday scenario" in preparing for Ivan, but added that officials and residents have no choice but to prepare for a third hurricane. HILARY ROXE (AP)

9 Dead in Jakarta Bombing

Group tied to al Qaeda claims attack against Australian Embassy

JAKARTA, INDONESIA | Suspected Muslim militants detonated a car bomb Thursday outside the Australian Embassy in Jakarta, killing nine people and wounding 173 in a bloody strike at a key U.S. ally in the war in Iraq.

The blast could influence upcoming elections in Australia, where the prime minister is running on a pro-American, anti-terror platform.

The bomb exploded near the embassy gate, flattening a section of the steel fence and shattering windows in nearby buildings. The explosion left bloody corpses strewn across the busy thoroughfare.

No one in the heavily fortified embassy was killed, though several were wounded. Police were investigating whether a suicide bomber triggered the blast.

portedly claimed responsibility for the attack, saying it was punishing Australia for supporting the war in Iraq. The statement was posted on an Internet site known for carrying extremist Islamic content. Its authenticity could not be verified.

Jemaah Islamiyah has been blamed for the 2002 Bali bombings that killed 202 people, including 88 Australians, and the Aug. 5, 2003, suicide bombing at the J.W. Marriott hotel in Jakarta that killed 12 people. CHRIS BRUMMITT (AP)

Hurricane Ivan Rages Through Caribbean

Category 5 storm is now headed for Jamaica

ST. GEORGE'S, GRENADA | Hurricane Ivan took aim Thursday at Jamaica and possibly Florida after killing 23 people in five countries and devastating Grenada.

Ivan, the deadliest hurricane to hit the Caribbean in a decade, pummeled Grenada, Barbados and other islands on Tuesday. On Thursday, it strengthened into a Category 5 storm — the most powerful, with 160 mph winds — and was expected to hit Jamaica, where officials urged 500,000 people to evacuate coastal and flood-prone areas.

The dead included a 75-year-old Canadian woman who drowned in a canal swollen by flood waters in Barbados after going out in the storm to search for her cat, and four youngsters in the capital of the Dominican Republic who were swept away by a giant wave Thursday even though the storm was nearly 200 miles from land.

The storm left its worst damage in Grenada, where from the air it appeared that nearly every house had been ripped up. Hunks of twisted metal and splintered wood torn from homes were strewn across the hillsides and roads.

In St. George's, Grenada's capital, police fired tear gas to try to stop a looting frenzy. Hundreds of people smashed shop windows to take televisions and shopping carts of food. Troops from other Caribbean nations were on the way to help restore order. IAN JAMES (AP)

Powell Calls Sudan Attacks 'Genocide'

Sudanese official says Bush administration is putting 'oil on the fire'

WASHINGTON | The Bush administration for the first time Thursday called attacks in Sudan's Darfur region by government-backed Arab militia against black Africans "genocide."

Secretary of State Colin Powell told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the conclusion was based on interviews conducted with refugees from the Darfur violence as well as other evidence.

"We concluded that genocide has been committed in Darfur and that the government of Sudan and the Janjaweed [Arab militias] bear responsibility," he said.

Powell's announcement came as the United States was pressuring the U.N. Security Council to impose sanctions on Sudan's oil industry, among other measures, if the government does not take steps to improve security in Darfur.

In Nigeria, where Darfur peace talks are under way, Sudanese Deputy Foreign Minister Najeeb Abdel Wahab criticized Powell's action. "We expect the international community to assist the process that is taking place in Abuja, and not put oil on the fire," he said.

The 1948 convention defines genocide as a calculated effort to destroy a national, ethnic, racial or religious group in whole or in part.

The violence in Darfur began when black African tribes rebelled in February 2003, accusing the government of neglecting their interests. In response, Powell said, Arab militias coupled with Sudanese military forces "committed large-scale acts of violence, including murders, rape and physical assaults on non-Arab individuals." GEORGE GEDDA (AP)

U.S. Subdues 3 Iraqi Cities, Dozens Dead

BAGHDAD | American warplanes struck militant positions in two insurgent-controlled cities Thursday and U.S. and Iraqi troops quietly took control of a third in a sweeping crackdown following a spike in attacks against U.S. forces.

More than 60 people were reported killed, most of them in Tal Afar, a city near the border with Syria that lies on smuggling routes for weapons and foreign fighters.

Nine people were reported killed in an airstrike in Fallujah against a house which the U.S. command suspected of being used by allies of the Jordanian-born terror mastermind Abu Musab al-Zarqawi.

Using a different strategy, U.S. and Iraqi forces entered the central city of Samarra for the first time in months under an agreement with local leaders to restore central government control peacefully. Residents agreed to remove guns from the streets as Americans pledged to stop raiding private homes. (AP)

Bin Laden's No. 2 Seen in Videotape

CAIRO, EGYPT | Osama bin Laden's chief deputy claimed the United States was on the brink of defeat in Iraq and Afghanistan in a videotape aired Thursday by Al-Jazeera.

"The defeat of America in Iraq and Afghanistan has become a matter of time," Ayman al-Zawahri said.

Intelligence officials were working to confirm the speaker was al-Zawahri. If it is, it would be the first time since December 2001 that bin Laden's No. 2 has appeared in a video in which he is speaking and delivering a message, a U.S. intelligence official said. SARAH EL-DEEB (AP)

Study: Health Care Premiums Up 11.2%

Surge in insurance costs comes as salaries increase just 2.2%

NEW YORK | Health care costs continued to surge this year as family premiums in employer-sponsored plans jumped 11.2 percent, the fourth year of double-digit growth, according to a new study.

The cumulative effect of rising health care costs is taking a toll on workers: There are at least 5 million fewer jobs providing health insurance in 2004 than in 2001, according to the survey of 3,017 employers by the Kaiser Family Foundation and the Health Research and Educational Trust.

The average premium for a family of four grew to $9,950 annually. The family premium for a preferred provider organization, the most common type of insurance, hit $10,217 — the first time it broke $10,000. PPOs are plans that provide members with a network of discounted providers that charge a copayment but also allows for the use of other doctors and hospitals.

"There is a great sense that there is just no answer to this problem," aid Drew Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation.

Altman noted that the hike in health premiums outpaced both the 2.2 percent growth in wages and 2.3 percent growth in inflation by five times. THERESA AGOVINO (AP)

Ex-Chief: 'Public Needed to Know'

Fighting to get her job back, Chambers denies leaking classified info

ALEXANDRIA, VA. | Fighting to get her job back, fired U.S. Park Police Chief Teresa Chambers testified Thursday that she did not release any classified information to the media.

In November 2003, Chambers told a Washington Post reporter that her department had a $12 million budget shortfall, and voiced concerns about underfunding and understaffing in the 620 member force.

She testified at the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board hearing that a press officer who accompanied her in a meeting with the reporter never raised any objections about the content of the interview.

Chambers also said she would've felt derelict in her duties had she not raised concerns about the budget and staffing problems. "Our public needed to know," Chambers said.

The Park Police patrol many landmarks in the nation's capital, as well as the Statue of Liberty in New York and the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco. MADISON PARK (AP)

National Airport Starts New Tests For Explosives

WASHINGTON | The airport nearest the nation's capital is now the first to test boarding passes for explosives.

The Transportation Security Administration began the pilot project this week at Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport.

A TSA spokesman said Thursday that passengers selected for a secondary screening will have their boarding passes tested while undergoing other checks. Security agents use a one-foot-by-one-foot box with a swatch of fabric that picks up microscopic samples.

"There is really no further delay for them as long as it is a negative match," said TSA spokesman Darrin Kayser. The explosives scanner takes seconds to register a reading.

Airports in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago will join the pilot program in a few weeks. (AP)

Metro Tries to Avoid Fare Hikes

Board hopeful agency can keep rates stable for the next 2 years

WASHINGTON | After back-to-back fare increases, Metro riders may get a two-year break — though one official cautioned against being overly optimistic.

The cash-strapped transit agency is facing a nearly $42 million budget gap in fiscal year 2006 and a $31 million deficit in 2007. But officials said this time they plan to turn to governments in D.C., northern Virginia and suburban Maryland to fill the hole.

"Two years of fare actions make a third fare increase undesirable," said

Metro board member Jim Graham, reading from the agency's Thursday budget presentation. "I think that is a massive understatement."

Metro General Manager Richard White hoped a two-year budget would give the agency enough time to figure out a dedicated funding source to solve its long-term money troubles.

Footing the bill would mean a more than 10 percent growth in the subsidies local governments pay to help run the system. Some board members admitted it would be a hard sell.

"I don't want to give anyone false hope we'll decrease fares and fees at this time," said board chairman Robert Smith of Maryland. CANDACE SMITH (AP)

Arrest Made in 1974 Md. Murder

BALTIMORE | After 30 years, a man wanted for the killing of a civilian police employee has been arrested, leaving friends, family members and police officers who had been working the case relieved.

Michael Hughes, 58, was arrested in Boston last weekend for allegedly stabbing a man he thought was gay. Police then discovered that Hughes was wanted for the 1974 Christmas Eve killing of 40-year-old McKinley Johnson.

Johnson was killed while making Christmas baskets and giving them away inside a West Baltimore bar, something he did every Christmas, said his former girlfriend, Helen Fogg, 62. When a man stole a can of Spam out of one of the baskets, Johnson confronted him and was shot. "That's what made it so bad, him dying on Christmas," said Fogg, the mother of Johnson's 35-year-old son. (AP)

Footsteps: J.D. Gibbs has his dad's team in good shape for Saturday's race. | 14

The Curtain Rises

After months of hype, it's time to see if Gibbs' return makes a difference

REDSKINS | The familiar high-pitch laugh isn't heard as often these days. The regular season is drawing near, and Joe Gibbs is getting more and more serious.

"Certainly I am nervous and anxious about it," the Washington Redskins coach said. "We open with a real good football team, and every week is going to be a life-and-death struggle."

While there are those who say a three-time Super Bowl winner in the Hall of Fame has nothing to prove, Gibbs feels that very legacy means he has everything to prove in his first season in 12 years. He's got to show he still has the touch, not only to satisfy himself, but to satisfy the fans who are expecting nothing short of an overnight miracle.

Success is long overdue in Washington, where change has been the only constant since Dan Snyder bought the team in 1999. Yes, there is excitement about this year's team because of Gibbs, but there was also a tremendous buzz in 2000 over a star-loaded team including Deion Sanders and Bruce Smith.

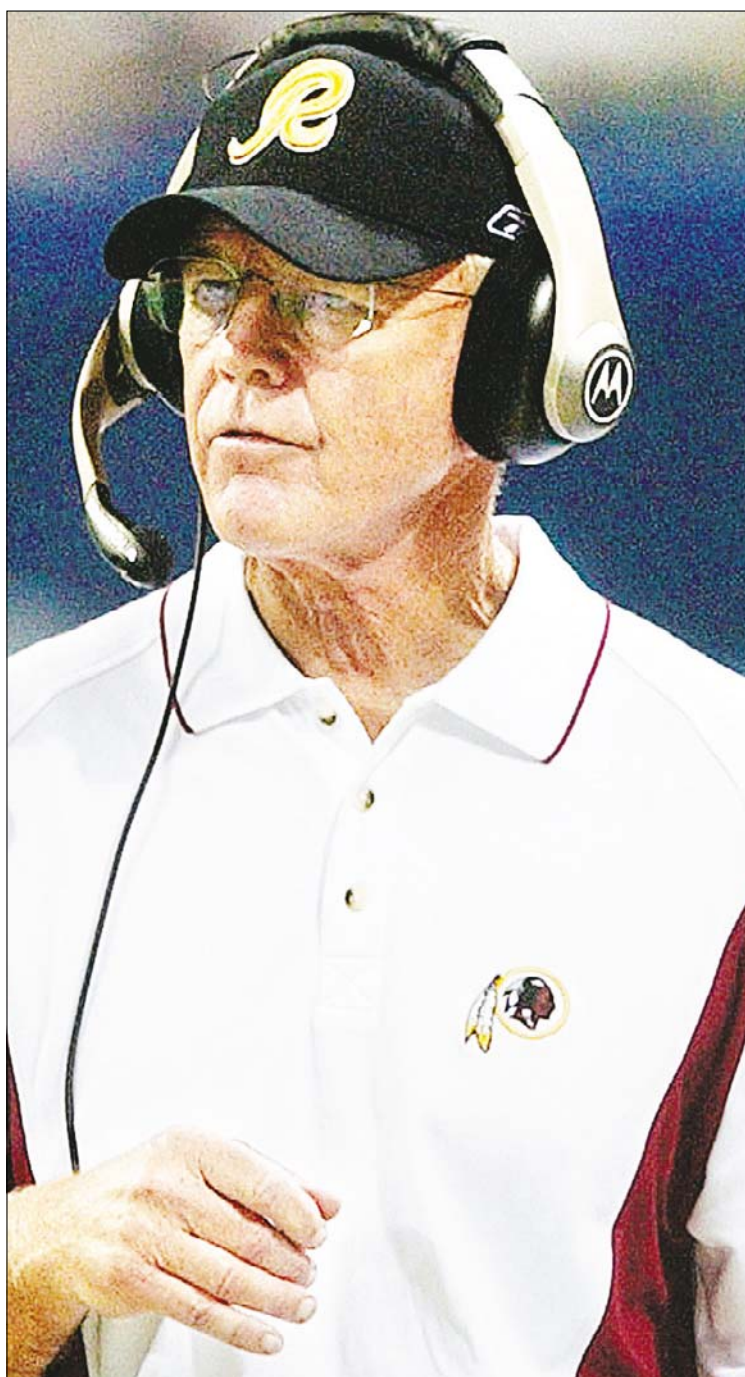

And in 2001, when coach Marty Schottenheimer arrived in town. And in 2002, when Steve Spurrier made the jump to the pros.

"I'm sick and tired of us changing coaches all the time," said Gibbs, who makes his official return on Sunday against Jon Gruden and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

So is this the year in which the regime change actually works? It had better be, for Snyder's sake, because he certainly can't top the hiring of Gibbs.

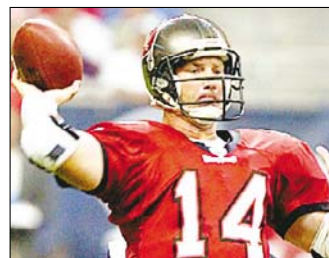

Of course, Gibbs is only as good as the talent he puts on the field.

Mark Brunell did nothing spe-

TAKE TWO: With the hopes of Redskins fans creating incredibly high expectations, Joe Gibbs returns to the Redskins' sideline for Sunday's game against Tampa Bay.

TIME OF POSSESSION: If the Redskins have the ball for 40 minutes, there's no way Tampa can stay close.

cial to win the quarterback job over struggling Patrick Ramsey.

Washington's offensive line was supposed to be a strength, but Jon Jansen is out for the season, and Chris Samuels and Randy Thomas are fighting nagging injuries.

The defensive line raises the biggest doubts because it presents no pass-rushing threat.

No wonder Gibbs is nervous. An improvement from last year's 5-11 record seems certain, but a wild-card playoff spot is probably the most realistic goal. JOSEPH WHITE (AP) Alana Beard will need to score more if the Mystics are to make the playoffs.

MUSIC | Pointing Fingers Now that he isn't teammates with Kobe Bryant anymore, Miami Heat center Shaquille O'Neal isn't holding back on the superstar guard. In his new rap CD, "Hot in Here Part Five," O'Neal takes a direct swipe at Bryant in a track called "You Not the Fightin' Type." According to ESPN.com, O'Neal says in the song: "Even with wings you never as fly as me ... you remind me of Kobe Bryant trying to be as high as me ... but you can't ... even if you got me traded." Bryant, who re-signed with L.A. this summer, is rumored to have orchestrated the blockbuster trade sending the center to Miami from the Los Angeles Lakers. (EXPRESS)

Williams Roots for Bucs

FOOTBALL | The mere mention of Joe Gibbs' name made Doug Williams smile.

No pro coach meant more to the Super Bowl MVP quarterback's success as a player, and Williams concedes he'll have mixed emotions when Gibbs returns to the sideline Sunday to lead the Washington Redskins against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"My son told me: 'Daddy, I just realized this is your old team against your old team,'" said Williams, TORN: Williams won a Super Bowl with Joe Gibbs, but works with the Bucs now.

the starting quarterback of the Redskins 1987-88 championship team. "It's going to be a tough one for me, but I realize where I am. I'm pulling for the Buccaneers."

Williams, now is in his first season as a personnel executive with the Bucs, watched the Redskins three times during the preseason and is impressed with what he's seen.

"I think anybody who knows Joe Gibbs knows he's not going to change. He's only going to show you what he wants you to see. He's going to give you basic, bland looks at what his offense is all about," Williams said. (AP.)

FAMILY TIES: J.D. Gibbs has experienced a smooth transition taking over his dad's NASCAR team, which is in Richmond, Va., for a crucial race on Saturday night.

Racing Runs in The Gibbs Family

With J.D. Gibbs at the helm, NASCAR team rolls into Richmond

AUTO RACING | Building a NASCAR team was his father's dream, but J.D. Gibbs is now the man leading Joe Gibbs Racing into the future.

While the elder Gibbs is preparing the Washington Redskins for Sunday's opener at home against Tampa Bay, J.D. is overseeing preparations by the race team for Saturday night's crucial race at Richmond.

Tony Stewart already has locked up a spot in NASCAR's new 10-race championship playoff, but Bobby Labonte needs to make up two places to get into the top 10 and be eligible to compete for the championship.

Clearly, the race team has hardly missed a beat since J.D.'s dad made the surprising decision to return to football.

So far, he's enjoying running the race team far more than he would ever have thought.

"What I truly enjoy is you're always doing something different day in and day out," J.D. said. "Sometimes, you're working with corporate partners and sponsors, sometimes you're going to hospitality, sometimes you're working on personnel in the shop or working on budget issues." MIKE HARRIS (AP)

Rivalry or Rout?

Blowouts appear likely in revivals of historic college football feuds

COLLEGE PICKS | While Florida State and Miami appear to be headed toward another close contest, two of college football's other storied rivalries look like mismatches.

Notre Dame and Michigan meet for the 32nd time Saturday, and Texas plays at Arkansas in the 35th anniversary of their most memorable game, in which Texas won 15-14 in front of President Richard Nixon. Neither promises to be pretty.

Here are the picks:

NO. 4 FLORIDA STATE (PLUS 2)

AT NO. 5 MIAMI

With some time to think about it thanks to Hurricane Frances, the pick's the same. Florida State, 23-20.

When the Terps need a kick, they can count on Novak to deliver

TERPS | Long before he became the leading scorer in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference, Nick Novak was just a redshirt freshman looking for a free ride through college.

So he went into the office of Ralph Friedgen and asked the rookie head coach to honor the scholarship offered by Ron Vanderlinden, whom Friedgen replaced after the 2000 season.

"I told him, 'Not until I see you kick,'" Friedgen recalled Tuesday. "Nick said, 'That won't be a problem.'"

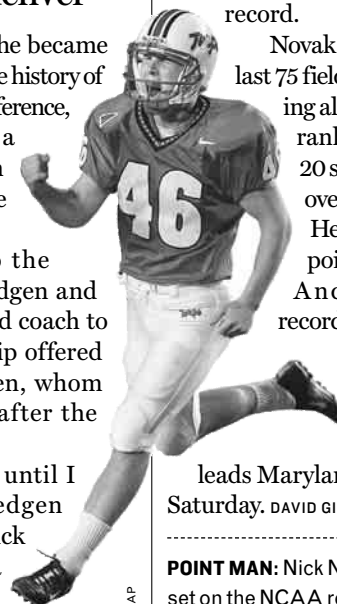

Friedgen got an offensive weapon who has produced 335 points over three-plus seasons and is closing in on the NCAA career scoring record.

Novak has made 63 of his last 75 field goal tries, including all three in the 23rd-ranked Terrapins' 23-20 season-opening win over Northern Illinois. He now stands just 88 points shy of Roman Anderson's NCAA record of 423 points.

"I would hope he has a shot at that," said Friedgen, who leads Maryland against Temple Saturday. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

POINT MAN: Nick Novak has his eyes set on the NCAA record of 423 points.

OPEN AND SHUT: Two-time U.S. Open champion Andre Agassi had trouble fighting off heavy winds and No. 1 seed Roger Federer in Thursday's quarterfinal.

Agassi Blown Out

In windy conditions, Federer finishes off 2-time Open champ

TENNIS | Roger Federer posted a huge win in the howling wind, beating two-time champion Andre Agassi 6-3, 2-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 Thursday in a U.S. Open quarterfinal match suspended the previous night because of rain.

Playing in gusts up to 39 mph that made the ball sail in silly fashion, the top-seeded Federer advanced to the Open semifinals for the first time.

"It was very difficult. It was one of the worst conditions I've played in," Federer said. "It's like playing warmup tennis and trying to keep the ball in play."

Said Agassi: "It's taken me 34 years to get myself not to complain about the conditions. It was about me dealing with it the best I can," he said. "Today, hitting the ball dead center of the court was a great shot. If the ball left my racket and was in play, it was my advantage."

Next up for the Wimbledon and Australian Open winner is No. 5 Tim Henman, who defeated Dominik Hrbaty 6-1, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2. That match also began Wednesday night. Later, Lleyton Hewitt swept out Tommy Haas 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

Fools of Fortune

'Bright Young Things' glitters brilliantly but eventually burns out

FILM | British actor Stephen Fry delivers a raucous directing debut with "Bright Young Things," a satiric dynamo whose radiant cast clearly is having so much fun that their vigor compensates for the characters' lack of emotional depth.

With a screenplay written by Fry from Evelyn Waugh's 1930s novel "Vile Bodies," the film's party-today-for-tomorrow-we-die sensibility also has relevance for modern audiences living under a cloud of terrorism.

The movie is infectious on so many levels, its jazzy score, the lavish costumes, the giddy pace propelled by Waugh's joyously absurd exchanges, effectively transferred by Fry to the screen.

The tale follows the lewd and lusty debauchery of Britain's party set, the "bright young things" whose excesses are minutely chronicled by the gossip hounds of the press.

VICIOUS DELICIOUS: The lost and lovely bright young things evoke little sympathy.

At the center of the dance floor are Adam Symes (Campbell Moore), a penniless writer on a perpetual quest to find the cash so he can marry sweetheart Nina Blount (Emily Mortimer).

Their romantic pitfalls play out against an endless champagne swirl of carousals, their inner circle including outrageous party-girl Agatha Runcible (Fenella Woolgar) and party-boy Miles (Michael Sheen).

Dan Aykroyd, increasingly interesting as a character actor blusters along a scandal-sheet publisher who wants his readers to know every move of the nation's social glut-tions. Jim Broadbent has hilarious moments as a drunken major who holds the key to Adam and Nina's financial security.

Rounding out the principal cast are David Tennant as a rival for Nina's affections and James McAvoy as gossip columnist.

Mortimer delivers the film's most authentically expressive performance, infusing Nina with fragile sadness even as she dances till dawn. In her spirited film debut, stage actress Woolgar is an utter delight, with a blissfully, thoughtlessly carefree comic sense.

But the other players come off rather superficially, all surface glitter but little dramatic weight. When bad things happen to them, it's hard to sympathize. Which perhaps is Waugh's point: When the bright young thingsturn to vile bodies, why should anyone care?

Smooth 'Criminal'

John C. Reilly steals the attention in this predictable con flick

FILM | Even when he's repellent, John C. Reilly manages to endear. A ubiquitous supporting and ensemble player, Reilly steps into the lead with "Criminal," a solid, engaging take on the shell-game genre.

A remake of the Argentinian film "Nine Queens," "Criminal" spins the tale of a veteran con man who takes on a protegee.

Writer-director Gregory Jacobs makes a skillful and assured debut, delivering a taut little thriller that clips along effortlessly while packing in a great deal of action and backstory.

The story unfolds in a single day in Los Angeles as cynical, heartless con man Richard Gaddis (Reilly) takes on new partner Rodrigo (Diego Luna) whom he finds working penny-ante grifts in a bar. Rodrigo has an attribute that Gaddis finds valuable in pulling swindles: "You have one thing money and practice can't buy," Gaddis tells Rodrigo. "You look like a nice guy."

CON HERE OFTEN? Reilly, Luna and Maggie Gyllenhaal have some honesty issues.

"Criminal" is packed with the obligatory surprises and questions about who's conning whom. The plot twists are not terribly hard to figure out, but they prove satisfying enough even if you see them coming. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

Make Like Monk

MUSIC | It was October 24, 1947, and Thelonious Monk was at the apex of his vocal art. The resonant humming that accompanied his every twist and turn at the keyboard signaled a new conception of jazz harmony.

To this day, the seal-like yelping that kicks in at 2:17 on the master take of "Well You Needn't" remains utterly avant-garde.

Countless jazzbos have gaped dumbfounded at Monk's toneless vocalese on "Ruby My Dear" and said, "Man, I can do that, too."

OK, so the most distinctive piano stylist in modern jazz wasn't much of a singer, but that's no reason to shun the semifinals of the 2004

THE FUTURE OF JAZZ: Monk's singing was pure, powerful vocal expression.

Thelonious Monk International Jazz Vocals Competition, held Sunday afternoon at the National Museum of Natural History.

Each year the contest, organized by the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz, pits promising students of a featured instrument against one another. In 1998, the last time voice was highlighted, the public was introduced to future luminaries Jane Monheit, Tierney Sutton and Teri Thornton.

Monday at the Kennedy Center, three finalists will go before a celebrity panel consisting of Dee Dee Bridgewater, Kurt Elling, Al Jarreau and Jimmy Scott.

But that's a pricey ticket, and you can catch all the hopefuls gratis the day before — so long as you line up early. GLENN DIXON

Museum of Natural History, 10th Street and Constitution Avenue NW; Sun., Sep. 12, 1 p.m. (first-come, first-served starting at 11:30 a.m.); free; 202-357-2700. (Federal Triangle)

Reviews by The Washington Post's
Stephen Hunter, Michael O'Sullivan and Desson Thomson.

BANG RAAJAN (Unrated, 120 minutes)
Amid all the David-vs.-Goliath nationalism of this fact-based epic inspired by the legendary resistance of a single 18th-century Siamese village against half the invading Burmese army, it's clear that not nearly as much attention was paid to such things as character development as it was to getting the special effects like decapitation, impalement and dismemberment juuust right. (M)

FILM VIOLENCE: Bongkod Kongmalai and Winai Kraibutr fight the invaders.

THE COOKOUT (PG-13, 85 minutes) This movie's slender excuse for a plot involves the hijinks that ensue when the NBA's No. 1 college draft pick, Todd Anderson (Storm P), throws a barbecue to celebrate his success. Not only is this comedy not funny, but it has many amateurish continuity problems — dusk one minute, bright sunshine the next. Todd's mother (Jennifer Lewis) says cookouts are about fun, food and family, or "the three F's." If you count the grade it deserves, that's four. (M)

HERO (PG-13, 99 minutes) Chinese director Zhang Yimou has created a breathtaking epic about almost supernatural martial artists who walk on water, hang in the air, and slice and dice their opponents into a thousand slivers with breathtaking elegance. The performers — Daoming Chen as a king of ancient China; Tony Leung, Maggie Cheung and Sky Donnie Yen as his warrior-opponents; and Jet Li as the nameless story-spinning center of the tale — are outstanding, but the magic is what's around them. You can feel the movie's sensibility and its powerful emotions in every aching image. (D)

PAPARAZZI (PG-13, 85 minutes) Action movie star Bo Laramie (Cole Hauser) has had it with obnoxious celebrity photographers. But when he takes a swing at psychotic snapper Rex Harper (Tom Sizemore), his problems only get worse. Once the gloves are off, Bo takes his methodical, murderous revenge. The fact that Mel Gibson produced this, and appears in a joke cameo as another angry celebrity, seems to indicate just whose real-life frustrations are being aired here. (D)

TAE GUK GI: THE BROTHERHOOD OF WAR (R, 140 minutes) This movie tells of two South Korean brothers "drafted" — that is, grabbed off the street — after the start of the Korean War. It's a huge, sprawling, expensive film full of shocking battle violence, but at the same time not without its subtleties. It's also a tough and honest film, not at all interested in the Korean War as we Americans remember it. (SH)

BROTHERS IN ARMS: Jang Dong-gun and Won Bin as siblings in wartime.

VANITY FAIR (PG-13, 140 minutes) In an engaging, propulsive performance as the strong-willed, social-climbing English governess who aspires to enter high society by any means, Reese Witherspoon moves director Mira Nair's version of William Makepeace Thackeray's social satire forward at a good clip, making Becky's rising and falling fortunes an intensely watchable spectator sport. (M)

WICKER PARK (PG-13, 115) Starring Josh Hartnett and Diane Kruger, this is a nothing-is-what-it-seems movie par excellence. The complicated love story somehow folds upon itself, until it could be said that the subject of the second half of the movie is the first half of the movie. Ultimately the sick force behind it all is revealed, and it's ... an evil multinational corporation! Wrong. That's the best part: You'll never guess. (SH)

WHO WHAT WHERE WHEN WHY

“ ... What's the difference between this show and the 24-hour flu? Twenty-three hours ...
... Where oh where is a cable outage when you really need one ...
... No, it doesn't make much sense, but maybe I wasn't paying close enough attention.
Maybe I was distracted by a piece of pocket lint ... ”

WORK IT, BOYS: On Bravo's upcoming reality show "Manhunt," hosted by Carmen Electra, 15 hunks compete to be named "America's Most Gorgeous Male Model." Who says we can't all be demeaned equally?

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

DAD HAS A SECRET
POP ROCKS (Fri., 8 p.m., Family) Gary Cole stars as Jerry Harden, a strict dad with a dutiful wife, Allison (Sherilyn Fenn). Jerry seems happy in his button-down world, but he's harboring a terrible secret. Jerry was once Dagger, the lead singer for the early-'80s hair band Rock Toxin. Then Izzy (David Jensen), the former Rock Toxin guitarist, arrives in town with word that a VH1-type outfit will offer them a tidy sum for a reunion concert. Needing money for his kid's tuition, Jerry thinks he can do the concert and make the quick cash without his family finding out.

BRAVE OR CRAZY?
DATELINE (Fri., 8 p.m., NBC) revisits Aron Ralston's gruesome ordeal in a Utah desert canyon. With his right arm crushed under a boulder and no help in sight, Ralston cut off the limb with a dull pocketknife and escaped to safety. Six months after his accident, Ralston returns to the desert site with NBC anchor Tom Brokaw.

THE THINGS THEY CARRIED
W.T.C. 9-11: STORIES FROM THE RUINS (Sat., 10 p.m., Discovery Channel) recalls the Herculean task of carting, sorting and examining the debris from Ground Zero. On Sept. 12, 2001, the first truckloads of debris arrived at the Fresh Kills landfill on Staten Island; thousands of trucks would follow. Workers sifted the rubble for personal effects—jewelry, key chains, belts, etc.—and, when possible, returned the relics to the families of the fallen.

FUTURE HEROES
Give the new teen drama JACK & BOBBY (Sun., 9 p.m., WB) credit for a clever and compelling narrative hook. Not to give too much away here, but one of the two central teenage characters grows up to be president in the year 2041. We're offered PBS-style flashbacks showing how brothers Jack (Matt Long) and Bobby McCallister (Logan Lerman) help shape each other's characters and form the man known as President McCallister, "the Great Believer." Call it future-retrospective-historical-fiction.

OMIGOD, WHAT DO I WEAR?
It's tween angst on Nick's Sunday-night schedule. UNFABULOUS (Sun., 8 p.m., Nickelodeon) stars Emma Roberts as a high school student who finds comfort in music as she navigates cliques, popularity and peer pressure. Ned's Declassified School Survival Guide (Sun., 7:30 p.m., Nickelodeon) offers quips and tips from a savvy seventh grader.

THE FIRST ATTACK ON THE U.S.
FIRST INVASION: THE WAR OF 1812 (Sun., 9 p.m., History) recalls how the ragtag American militia, confronted by the British army, faced a series of stinging defeats, culminating in the burning of the White House. British troops were driven from the nation's new capital by a freak combination of a hurricane and tornado. This handsome and informative documentary climaxes with the American triumph in Baltimore Harbor (where Francis Scott Key composed "The Star Spangled Banner") and the Battle of New Orleans.

'I HIT 'IM WITH MY SHOE!'
THE BAD SEED (Sat., 10:15 p.m., TCM) A mother (Nancy Kelly) slowly discovers that her pigtailed darling (Patty McCormack) is a pint-sized killer in this 1956 shocker. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Cars

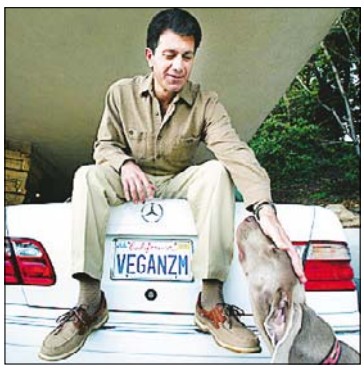

It's getting easier to find cruelty-free cars — even vegan ones

Actor Michael Bell's is. The 66-year-old Los Angeles resident doesn't eat or wear animal products, and his hybrid car doesn't have a stitch of leather in it.

If it had, Bell said, he wouldn't have bought the car, a 2001 Toyota Prius, despite its impeccable green credentials.

In raw numbers, vegans such as Bell are so few that they barely register on surveys of consumer habits. But to automobile manufacturers trying to win favor among the increasing number of consumers who say they are environmentally conscious, vegans — who avoid all animal products — are what one marketing expert called the center of the bull's-eye.

Pleasing vegans, the theory goes, is key to reaching a wider group of consumers — affluent shoppers who worry about the environment and who are willing to pay extra for food, clothing and even automobiles, if they are made in ways that do less harm to the planet.

Toyota Motor Corp. is so attuned to the sensibilities of these so-called green consumers that the company doesn't even offer leather seats for the popular Prius.

COW PAL: Michael Bell doesn't wear leather — or sit on it in his Toyota Prius.

Is Your Car Vegan?

Ford Motor Co., under fire from environmental activists for its gas-guzzling sport utility vehicles, ran an eight-page advertisement in The New Yorker magazine touting the company's green credentials. The ad led off with the boast that 11 members of the design team for the company's soon-to-be-released hybrid Escape SUV are vegetarians, and its leader is a vegan.

Even Mercedes-Benz, which does not make a hybrid, will offer a "non-leather" package starting with the 2005 model year, in response to customer requests.

Vegans themselves are not a powerful market force. Joe Marra, executive director of a market research firm that specializes in environmentally conscious consumers, said vegetarians make up just 1.5 percent of the general population, and vegans hardly register at all.

But his firm, the Natural

Marketing Institute, has done research showing that more than a quarter of the adult population, about 56 million people nationwide, say they look for products that are "healthy and sustainable." The majority of these consumers say they are willing to pay significantly more for environmentally friendly products.

Of course, it's still not exactly easy to find a vegan car. Sam Gerard, a businessman who lives in Santa Barbara, has made finding the perfect vegan car a personal quest. A vegan who manufactures a line of plant-based nutritional products, Gerard isn't interested in the Prius, which he thinks is ugly, or the Escape. He wants a luxury car.

For the past two years, Gerard says, he has scoured the Internet and written letters to automakers, to no avail. His last car was a special order from Mercedes. The automaker let him order synthetic seats, he said, but it was really hard to find a steering wheel that wasn't wrapped in leather.

He now plans to buy a BMW, having discovered after months of calling around and grilling salesmen that one of the upgrade options on the company's 300 line can be ordered with its seats, upholstery and steering wheel wrapped in synthetic suede.

There are still some animal byproducts in the tires, Gerard said, but he believes he did the best he could. SHARON BERNSTEIN (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Live Online

TV Land

Washington Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Thursday to talk about what's happening on the small screen | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Do you think that there is a new genre for TV comedy, in that semi-scripted comedies (e.g. "Curb Your Enthusiasm," "Reno 911," "Arrested Development") will replace the highly-scripted, cookie-cutter sitcoms?

Yes, I do think there is a "new genre" of non-laugh track, non-set-up line, set-up line, punch line, cut-to-commercial kind of comedy. But notice that of your three examples, two are on cable and actually do very small numbers and the third is a barely surviving Fox show that should not have been brought back based on its audience size.

After watching the first 15 minutes of the new "Surreal Life," I carved my eyeballs out of my skull with an X-Acto blade. Please tell me what in the world television is coming to. A bare-breasted Brigitte Nielsen and gold-toothed Flavor Flav on the same screen is entertainment?

Shame on you for watching that show. You need to watch something more high-toned. Like "The Apprentice" or "Real Life."

What's with all the local news people going from station to station over the last couple of years? Is this a local phenomenon or does it happen everywhere?

The local television business is a really tough business and I'm not talking about just here. There is enormous churn, both on the air and behind the camera. This market had been stagnant for so long, I think what's going on now is an upheaval that was long overdue.

I know you watched the Olympics but do you watch other sports, like NFL football? I find Terry Bradshaw to be the single most irritating person on TV since Richard Simmons.

I try not to watch programming that involves heavily padded men chasing each other around with a little ball. Unless Janet Jackson is performing at half-time.

More Roads, More Traffic

WEDNESDAY'S ARTICLE on the region's traffic ("D.C. Takes Bronze for Bad Traffic") only quoted those who favor building more roads to solve traffic jams. Has building more roads solved our traffic problems so far? No, it has just made things worse. Building more roads encourages sprawl, which makes more people use cars for longer distances. What will really help is to provide more incentives for people to telecommute or use mass transit or to carpool or bike to work. That will reduce the number of cars, improving the traffic flow.

ELTON JOHN now has his very own New England Patriots jersey. Owner Robert Kraft bestowed it upon the performer before Thursday's pre-kickoff concert, tightly controlled to avoid any 2004 Superbowl-style gaffes. Perhaps it was a reward for John's promise of good behavior. "Elton told me he won't take his shirt off," said Charles Coplin, one of the producers of the show. "He can do that. We've allowed him to do that." (EXPRESS)

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Tensions on the home front are the result of financial complications you've not been addressing with maximum attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) This is a good day to indulge in those endeavors which ignite your passions. After dark, adventure may beckon, but you must employ common sense.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may feel as if others are holding you back, but in fact you're curbing your own progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may find it difficult to restrict yourself to your usual endeavors. You're in the mood for some adventure, so go out and find it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may have to forgo your usual entertainment to tend to some last-minute business and put the workweek to bed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You will very likely keep things short and sweet, in order to get on to bigger and better things A.S.A.P.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll feel increased pressure today to give others the things only you can provide. Be sure to pace yourself and guard against exhaustion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be neglecting those closest to you in favor of certain aspirations. Could it be that your own desires are leading you astray?

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may find yourself becoming involved in the affairs of others on a wider and wider scale.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have trouble winding down after a busy and quite exciting day. Numerous opportunities offer you novelty at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You must be sure to take advantage of opportunities to mix with others both professionally and socially.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll find yourself front-and-center, whether you like it or not. Now you'll learn whether you have what it takes to be a true leader.
